THE Protocol Book of Sir Alexander Gaw, which is here printed in abridged form, is in H. M. General Register House, being No. 7 of the series of Protocol Books preserved there. It has been clearly ascertained that he is the same Alexander Gaw whose name occurs in a writ of 1514 (Cf. Laing Charters, No. 304), when he is described as "presbyter of Brechin diocese, by apostolic and imperial authority." This description indicates that he was born within the diocese named. The present book covers the years 1540-1558, and Gaw no doubt had more than one Protocol Book, this being probably the last. In addition to holding the office of notary public, he was also vicar pensioner of Abernethy. Although probably resident in Abernethy on account of his duties there, he seems to have had a chamber or writing booth in Strathmiglo (Cf. No. 63), where he no doubt transacted business when in that neighbourhood. The Editors have been unable to discover any further information of a definite character regarding the notary himself, but reference is made to pp. xlii. and xliii. of the Scottish Text Society's edition of John Gaw's The Richt Vay to the Kingdom of Heuine, edited by Professor A. F. Mitchell, D.D., where it is suggested that he is probably the same Alexander Gaw who is described in the Exchequer Rolls (Vols. 12 and 13), as chaplain at Finhaven from 1499-1513, a suggestion now proved to be correct by the writ of 1514.

Attention may be drawn to the large number of place names of Celtic origin which occur throughout the volume.

The following excerpts, whether original or not is not certain, were written by the notary in the Protocol Book, the first on the fly leaf at the beginning of the volume, and the second on p. 26b.

I. H. S.

Aspice qui transis mea vulnera rubra cruore,
Vulneror in capite spinis, palmis pedibusque,
Affigorque cruci clavis, cum corde sarissa
Perforat atque latus, fluxere latex cruor una,
Et maduere crucem stillantia vulnera totam,
Et viles inter tanquam fur pendeo fures,
Blasphemor verbis, et pocula fellis amari
Labris apponuntur, et fel potare negabam,
Finis amarorum Eloy dum clamo, caputque
Inclinans animam Patri sic spiritus exit,
Celi sub centro quis corpore viderit uno
Tot tormenta simul tantos remanere dolores.
